Prepositions tell you where, when or why something happens.

I am going to Sean's house in the morning.

They can also tell you when things happen in relation to each other.

Let's play football until dinner.

Circle the most appropriate preposition in the sentences below.

1. That picture in/on the wall is beautiful.
2. I ate lots of popcorn since/during the film.
3. Cameron is meeting his dad above/in front of the police station.
4. They buried the time capsule underneath/over the oak tree.
5. Let's put up posters in/before any available space.
