Poetry

WALT: analyse a poem

3 stars: read the poem with your grown up, what do you think it is about? When your grown up has read the poem to you a few times, have a go at drawing a picture to represent this poem in the box next to the poem. This about what images pop into your head when your grown up is reading the poem. After that, have a discussion about any vocabulary that you might not understand. Use the teacher dictionary to help you find the meaning of some of the words in the poem.

In Search of Cinderella

From dusk to dawn,
From town to town,
Without a single clue,
I seek the tender, slender foot
To fit this crystal shoe.
From dusk to dawn,
I try it on
Each damsel that I meet.
And I still love her so, but oh,
I've started hating feet

-Shel Silverstein.
