

Dear Teachers at Reddal Hill,

As the twins time at primary school comes to an end, I'm excited for them to start their new chapter in life and eager to see the type of people they will become. They have achieved great things in their life so far and I couldn't be prouder of them, to some degree I owe that to Reddal hill and it's staff.

Every school cares about grades, uniform and behaviour, what really sets this school apart is how they care about the person too. We have seen caring and compassion when we have had a hard time. Help and support when weve needed it the most. Understanding and patience when they've made mistakes. Above all I am grateful for the way my children have felt valued, listened to and like they belong.

The twins have learnt much more than reading and writing, they have learnt about the type of person they want to be, how to navigate friendships and how to be kind, these lessons were taught by school staff and the example they set.

Our family have had a difficult time over the years and school has been our support system and I'm forever grateful for that. Teachers don't always get the recognition they deserve, but I just wanted to put into words the impact you have made on our lives and how we will remember for years to come.

Alexis is making progress due to the work and foundations your school was able to implement in her time there. The work and dedication she was shown has been vital to getting the correct help and support in place at high school and made such a difference to her.

All I'm trying to say is, keep being the school we know you to be. It is a place to be proud of.

Thankyou for everything, Laura, Alexis, Olivia and Maci
