Complete this story by writing your ending (Don't forget to use your plan from yesterday) The Monkey and the Giraffe When I was young, my grandmother told me this story as we sat around a camp fire telling me why the animals look like they A long time ago in the forgotten time, in the country around Bulbul, there lived a monkey and a giraffe. Monkey was funny, playful and mischievous and had many friends. Giraffe was lonely, sad and quiet and was sometimes too worried to even leave the house. In-between their houses was a large waterhole that they promised to protect from hunters. This meant that when somebody went out they other would need to stay behind to quard the precious watering hole. One day, giraffe asked monkey if he would quard the watering hole while she went hunting for food. "All right," said Monkey, "I'll look after it." So, giraffe went off on her own to look for food. When giraffe came back, she said to monkey, "All right, it's your turn now. You can go hunting and I'll look after the watering hole." So off monkey went, looking for his own food while giraffe stayed behind to look after the water. Monkey was away for quite a long time and giraffe was thirsty. She decided to take a dink from the watering hole. However, as she was not very tall when she leaned over to get a drink her head became stuck in the fence and she started to cry. Monkey heard her and rushed back to see what the matter was. Now, when monkey arrived he couldn't believe what he was seeing. He rushed over and tried to get giraffe's head out of the "Help me," begged giraffe. "I cannot get my head out!" ""I'm trying, but your head is stuck!" replied monkey. "Please, I can't be stuck forever" sobbed giraffe. "Ok, but this might hurt, "stated Monkey.

☆

Then monkey started to tug on giraffe's head. Monkey pulled and pulled, but giraffe's head still wasn't free. Then monkey started to tug harder and harder. As he yanks on her head, they notice that monkey's arms are getting longer and longer and that giraffe's neck is getting longer and longer. Finally, after one last gigantic tug giraffe's head is free.